These cards are having a wonderful impact on my life. I don't have much experience with oracle decks, and usually consult the I Ching or Tarot cards. In fact I've given away every oracle deck I've ever bought because they don't resonate with me and I end up disappointed. (I've never tried any of Colette Baron-Reid's others.) However, I went ahead and ordered this deck in December because I thought I could use a good dose of 'lightening up.' Actually, I was listening to Collette and Pam on the radio giving readings with The Oracle of E and I thought, "I want the next question and card to relate to me." Sure enough, it was a woman calling in with a relationship issue and the card was "Sticky Wicket," which perfectly fit my own situation. So I ordered them and have found the cards not only accurate, but tremendously useful in helping me shift my mood and reactions in a positive direction. For example, I had a solstice gathering planned and everyone was bailing on me and I was getting kind of mad. I pulled a card and got "Hairball," which advises that things are in a tangle and to hand it off to The Dude. I stopped being mad, went out and had my own ritual, and wound up unexpectedly at dinner with other people I hadn't planned on seeing, and having a nice time. If I'd consulted the Tarot I might have gotten Five of Wands, or something, suggesting everyone at cross-purposes. That would have given me a picture of what was happening, but not the needed advice to not force things. Since then I've used this oracle in tandem with the Tarot quite a bit, and with interesting results--sometimes even stunning results. For instance, this morning I pulled the Tarot card Ten of Wands, which shows burdens.
