Messages Of Hope: The Metaphysical Memoir Of A Most Unexpected Medium

Synopsis

Are there dimensions of existence beyond the material world? If so, can we connect with loved ones who have passed, and with higher levels of consciousness than our own? Messages of Hope is the page-turning story of a former skeptic who has found the answers to these questions and more through evidential communication with the unseen realms. When Commander Suzanne Giesemann, former U.S. Navy commanding officer and aide to the Chairman of the Joint Chiefs of Staff, walked the halls of the Pentagon and flew on Air Force One, she did everything by the book. A personal witness to the horrors of 9/11, she saw things in black and white, with little time for spiritual seeking. Never did she expect that a personal family tragedy would propel her on a mystical journey that would turn her life's path in a most unexpected direction. Follow Suzanne--now an author, speaker, and a practicing psychic-medium--as she moves from doubt and disbelief to full faith and trust in a reality beyond the physical senses. Laced with spirit-inspired poetry and compelling answers to many of life's big questions, Suzanne's remarkable story will leave readers with the comforting and credible message that this life is not all there is.

Customer Reviews

Having recently lost a beloved wife to cancer, I read a number of books and meditations on the grieving process and on what we might expect of the spirit as it passes into a new form. All of these books were helpful to me, but none came anywhere near as close to speaking to me so directly and personally as this book. It filled me with hope when I read it; it gives me hope to this day; and it will give me hope for the remainder of my life. I cannot thank Suzanne Giesemann enough and I cannot recommend a book more highly.

Warning - do not read this book unless you have tissues handy. It will bring tears to your eyes, I don't care who you are. Some times they may be sad tears as you empathize with someone in pain. Other times tears of joy because the poetry in this book is just wonderful and, the main characters (in this real life story) raise above the challenges sent their way and create something beautiful from the pain. It's very easy to read, which is a good thing, because once you start into it, you're hooked. You won't be doing anything else until you finish it. A wonderful gift idea for anyone you know who has lost someone they loved. It will help their hearts to heal.

I really enjoyed reading Suzanne's book and about her experiences and development. Having taken Mediumship training, I could relate to much of what she described - especially those initial doubts and wondering if I was "making things up". I've come to realize that this is just part of the journey. In Messages of Hope, Suzanne describes events that led to her initial interest in spirit communication, her initial doubts, her first reading from an evidential medium and her attending classes taught by Janet Nohavec. She also goes into interesting detail about her training at Arthur Findlay College in England, and her stepping across any fear barrier by giving her initial messages. In sharing her thought process and emotions, Suzanne's writing becomes insightful and empowering as she goes into detail of how she overcame fear and doubt to come fully into her Gifts. I met Suzanne years ago when I attended her SOAR workshop and I observed then that she was a stellar example of someone living their purpose. So, if you want to know more about Mediumship or have a curiosity about Spirit Communication or if you desire to live your purpose joyfully, freely and openly or are just looking for a 'can't put it down' read - get this book. And thanks to Suzanne for shining her Light so brightly - that others may follow!

Messages of Hope is a wonderful book. Suzanne's detailed description of 9/11 gives the feeling that you are with her as she is watching the destruction and horror of that day. This book is for anyone who has ever lost a loved one. Suzanne's gift is the ability to put the feelings experienced through such a devastating, loss into meaningful words. Having experienced her own loss, she understands that, sick, numbing feeling that doesn't want to believe it could be true. After reading this, it is difficult to doubt the existence of life after death or to doubt that our loved ones are still with us. What a blessing Suzanne is to me, and to all the others she has helped, by putting us in touch with our loved ones. Knowing and believing they are still alive, in a different sense or dimension, is such a beautiful, comforting feeling. To truly believe that this life is not all there is, enables me to go on with my life, accepting the fact that we will be together again with those we have loved.

Suzanne is a gifted writer who writes honestly from the heart. Her style of writing makes you feel (and know) that she's a real person just like you. Messages of Hope is a "can't put down" book that tells of her journey to becoming a medium. After reading "Messages of Hope", there's no way a person could deny the power of meditation and the belief that there is more to life as we know it. Suzanne's life was transformed, and she has transformed many lives with her books, workshops, lectures, and readings.

She is a "great!" (Aww c'mon that was funny!) As I have argued before in other reviews; the fear of death, obliteration as it were, is so pervasive and pernicious that it has averted many from living "a conundrum that to a not insignificant extent, has impacted this reviewer. Admittedly, I am the personification of the proverbial, if not actual: "doubting Thomas." It is difficult for my small, linear brain to wrap itself around concepts such as "soul, spirit, grace, God, angels and the like" and the reason I do emphatically believe in these ideas is by virtue of another nebulous concept known as "faith." And a not exactly unflappable faith either! But this piece has decisively opened other vistas for me. Suzanne has with tremendous rigor and perspicacity, offered a work that will affect great change in psyches that have similar persuasions as my own. Using her own personal evolution from an abundantly disciplined & focused Naval Commander to a highly adept, sensitive and evidentiary "window to the spirit world," the author adeptly and capably vitiates the innuendo that the pall of suspected personal annihilation has cast over those in body. Colloquially expressed: Commander Giesemann kicks death to the curb! While the message of the book is of course the primary cause for its cognitive digestion, the writing style that the author employs is of exquisitely high caliber. Each word, sentence and paragraph is designed carefully so as to impart maximum impact with a scantiness of superfluity. This doesn't mean the piece is in anyway unfriendly or impersonal, quite the contrary, It simply means that Suzanne has an excellent command of those silly linguistic doodads (i.e. vocabulary, grammar, syntax.) This is a joyful, insightful and compelling read! Get crackin'!! Stars? Let's not go there.
