The Dog At The Door: Supernatural Witch Cozy Mystery (Lainswich Witches Book 5)

Synopsis

Rowen Greensmith and her new husband have finally done it. They've moved out of the Greensmith home and into a house of their own. It's the house of Rowen's dreams, a place she fell in love with the moment she laid eyes on it. Things are going great. Lainswich is getting ready for their annual marathon. Her aunts are opening a New Age store. Rowen's own career and love life couldn't be running any more smoothly than they are. Of course, things never stay calm in Rowen's life for long. The arrival of a stray dog sparks a mystery. The more poking around Rowen does, the more she begins to suspect that something is amiss in this dream house of hers. Everyone says the Woodwards who owned the house last moved to Florida, but no one ever really leaves Lainswich for good. A certain presence in the shed has Rowen certain that something horrible must have happened to the Woodwards. Are they even still alive? Rowen's friends and family all say she's just looking for a mystery. They could be right, or it could be something more. Either way, there are questions and they need answering. And Rowen is going to have to answer those questions fast. Her list of suspects is a short one. It's just her luck that her cousin Peony would fall for one of the men on that list. Solving a mystery is hard enough. Doing it without her family absolutely hating her for it might just be impossible. Novella (approx. 40,000 words). Fifth Volume of the "Lainswich Witches" Mystery Series. It is a standalone (reading prior or future volumes not required to enjoy the book but would enhance the story, no cliffhanger).

Customer Reviews

Newlyweds Rowen and Eric are in the process moving into a charming old house they have recently purchased through a real estate agent. They never met the former owners of the property, Mr. and Mrs. Woodward, who have moved down to Florida. Rowen wonders why they left the beautiful house they had lived in for most of their lives, but at least their loss is her gain. One night an old dog comes banging at their back door, who seems to have been neglected and malnourished. The dog runs through the house like he owns the place, and Rowen surmises that he belonged to the former owners of the house. She wonders why did they leave him behind? The dog is happy throughout the house, except when he gets near the shed in the backyard, where he's restless and growling. Although Rowen had gotten good vibes from the house, it was quite different when she entered the shed, and she realizes that something bad happened there. Although Rowen has fallen in love with the dog, she attempts to return him to his rightful owners. She tries to get in touch with Mr. and Mrs. Woodward through the real estate agent but she has no luck. However she learns that the couple has two sons, Liam and Danny, who still live in Lainswich, both of whom are surprised that the old dog is still alive, and neither of whom has the means to keep him. Rowen realizes something is not quite right about the story she's been told about the previous owners. Are they really in Florida, or did something bad happen to them? Did Liam or Danny have something to do with their parents leaving? To complicate things, Rowen's cousin Peony has fallen in love with Liam and is running off to spend a weekend with him in Florida.
