Outsystem: A Military Science Fiction Space Opera Epic: Aeon 14 (The Intrepid Saga)

Synopsis

In the spirit of great Space Opera by Peter F Hamilton, Jack Campbell, and Larry Niven comes Aeon 14. If you love strong heroines like Kris Longknife, then you're going to love Tanis Richards. Major Richards needs to get out of the Sol System. Demoted by the military and hung out to dry, the media labels her the Butcher of Toro. Despite her soiled record, Tanis is still one of the best military counter-insurgency officers in the Terran Space Force. And they need her to find the terrorists responsible for trying to destroy the GSS Intrepid, a massive interstellar colony ship in the final phases of construction at the Mars Outer Shipyards. It'll be her ticket out of the Sol system, but Tanis discovers she is up against more than mercenaries and assassins. Major corporations and governments have a vested interest in ensuring the Intrepid never leaves Sol, ultimately pitting Tanis against factions inside her own military. With few friends left, Tanis will need to fight for her life to get out of the system. For this and more reviews, visit us at Booklvr's Haven. Major Tanis Richards. Strong. Cold. Militant. Soldier. Woman. She kicks some serious ass. She is also the reason why I picked up this novel to review. I am not a science fiction fan, normally. I am quite choosy with that genre and tend to navigate more towards fantasy. Mainly because science fiction writers have a much greater imagination than I could ever hope to have of my own. In fact, science fiction writers blow me away. I wish I could see into their minds and visualize along with them. I would enjoy the stories so much more, I think. Left to my own meager devices, my imagination sometimes fails to give me a picture of what all the gadgetry, ships, and biological or non-biological beings walking around in said story, look like! But I figured, since I love strong kick ass heroines, I would be satisfied reading about Tanis, even if everything going on around her maybe didn't make much sense to me... or so I hoped. It took me a while to figure out that 'humans' are not quite fully human in this world that author Michael Cooper created. They are altered with technology. They have AI's and all sort of gadgets installed that sound quite cool, but were challenging to me in getting the visual. But I think that if I were to imagine her character, the pic included in our blog review feels pretty good. And she definitely rocked it in this book, and kicked so much butt that Chuck Norris would be jealous. I wasn't disappointed. The action in this novel is off the charts! I grasped enough of what was going on to follow along.

Outsystem is not your typical military science fiction. It's much more than that. Major Tanis Richards is a very strong female protagonist. She's in charge of security for the colony ship, Intrepid, still under construction. She takes her job very seriously. Major Richards is always on top of things with her strategy three steps ahead of the enemy. You see, someone very powerful wants to see the Intrepid destroyed by any means necessary. That unknown someone employs mercenaries, assassins, saboteurs, and even has a price on the head of Maj. Richards. From start to finish, this is an action-packed thrill ride of military sci-fi. The bad guys never seem to stop and always seem to have Tanis with her back against the wall. Never to be outsmarted, Tanis uses every trick in her big book of tactics to overcome the enemy. This is all about a race to colonize a distant world. There are two colony ships under construction, the Intrepid and the Dakota. While the Intrepid is subjected to all sorts of sabotage, the Dakota seems to be skating by without a problem. My first thought would be to suspect that the Dakota's backers had something to do with the troubles on the Intrepid. This obvious angle isn't even spoken about until near the end of the book. It seemed so obvious to this reader. Another aspect to this space opera is that almost everyone has an artificial intelligence implanted in their brains, with the military personnel having the most advanced. The military folks also have industrial strength body mods which allow them to take severe injuries without much problem as well as being able to move quite fast, like running at 30 mph. The only real problem that I had with this story, was keeping track of the different alphabet agencies.
